QUENTIN ROOSEVELT KILLED IN AIR BATTLE ON CHATEAU THIERRY FRONT IN FRANCE

London Dispatch Indicates He Received Mortal Wound

LANE FALLS IN FLAMES

Returning From Patrol Fight When the Germans Got Him.

ATTACKED BY SQUADRON

Quentin witnessed the battle and saw the plane fall but does not know at the time who the victim is; Quentin was youngest son of the Colonel.

LONDON, July 17.—Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, Colonel Roosevelt's youngest son, who has been attached to the American flying forces on the Marne front, was killed at Chateau Thierry on July 16, says a dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph.

Lieutenant Roosevelt, the dispatch says, was returning from a patrol fight when he was attacked by a German squadron. It was seen that he was suddenly lost control of his machine, having probably received a mortal wound.

PARIS, July 17.—Lieutenant Quentin Roosevelt, youngest son of the former president, has been killed in an air fight, the semi-official Havas news agency announced. His machine fell in flames into the enemy zone.

Philip Roosevelt, Quentin's cousin, witnessed the air battle in the vicinity of Chateau Thierry in which the machine fell but did not know until after that the airplane was that of his cousin.

COLONEL GETS NEWS OF SON'S DEATH

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 17.—Colonel Roosevelt learned that his son, Quentin, was missing through his dispatches this morning. WAR CHEST PLAN FOR FINANCING COUNTY ADOPTED

Hundred Fifty Men Named to Direct One Great Drive For Funds.

VAN SWERINGEN AT HEAD

Scheme is Outlined at Meeting of Officers Which Packs the Large Court Room to Doors; Some Opposition But Vote for Plan Unanimous.

The War Chest plan for collection of funds for war relief organizations was unanimously adopted at a meeting of more than 200 representative citizens of Fayette county, held at the Court house in Uniontown yesterday afternoon. The plan was outlined and many questions were asked and answered in order to clearly define the proposition before it was finally passed on. Connellsville had a good delegation present, there being between 20 and 25 persons.

Although local representatives were not prejudiced against the War Chest, many pertinent questions were asked in order that no hasty and immature decision would be reached. Several local men put questions before the committee, but when a satisfactory explanation was given they went along with the proposition. One Masonstown man presented negative arguments, but he, too, joined in the unanimous vote.

The Court room was filled, many standing. The War Chest, which will combine individual campaigns into one big canvass was freely discussed. The proposition is to secure pledges for contributions to the Red Cross, R. C. Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A. and Salvation Army at the same time. The quota for this county is $1,000,000.

Among Connellsville representatives at the meeting were: A. O. Bixler, T. J. Hooper, E. R. F. W. Wright, George S. Connell, Robert Norris, D. F. Lepley, J. S. Darr, George W. Campbell, F. E. Markell, W. D. McGinnis, J. L. Cochran, P. R. Kanterer, E. T. Norton, W. R. Kenney and M. B. Pryce.

Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen was elected general chairman of the foundation, accepting the important post with a pledge to give his duties his best efforts, just before the adjournment of the meeting. Judge R. E. Umbel was named campaign manager. His duties will be to direct the forthcoming drive through which will be raised sufficient funds for meeting next year's allotments upon this county for the Red Cross, Young Men's Christian Association, Knights of Columbus, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Salvation Army and other recognized war relief organizations. The war chest drive will be held in connection with the Y. M. C. A. drive which is scheduled for early fall.

The War Chest Foundation consists of a board of directors composed of 150 men, representative both of all war relief organizations and also of every section of Fayette county. Authority for directing the activities of the foundation is centralized in its (Continued on Page Two.)

GERMAN LOSSES IN PRESENT OFFENSIVE PLACED AT FULLY 100,000

By Associated Press.

LONDON, July 17.—Forces of the German Crown Prince advanced another three miles down the Marne valley yesterday. This makes a total penetration of the French lines of about six miles at Festigny, the most southern point reached by the invaders.

PARIS, July 17.—The Germans last night threw new forces into the battle on the front south of the Marne and attacked the Allied lines north of St. Agnan, the war office announced today. The enemy succeeded in penetrating into Bourdonnerie. The battle is continuing in the woods immediately to the south of this point.

On the front farther to the east the French held the enemy in the southern outskirts of the Bouctieny wood and at the village of Neffes.

A powerful attack likewise was made by the Germans in the direction of Monvoisin but they were driven from this locality by a French counter attack. On the front between the Marne and Rheims the fighting developed violently in the Courton woods. The Germans attacked in the Vignay region on this front but their assault here broke down completely.

Along the line to the east of Rheims the Germans delivered local attacks, notably in the Prunay region. These efforts by the enemy were fruitless.

In renewed assaults upon Beaumont the enemy suffered a sanguinary repulse.

The French positions throughout the region to the east of Rheims were maintained intact.

TEUTONS' PROGRESS ALONG MARNE EXCEEDINGLY SLOW. ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, July 17.—Forty-eight hours have sufficed for the holding in check of the German masses launched in the Crown Prince's great offensive on Monday. The enemy units which were turned back from the direction of Paris and are trying to descend the Marne are being held in check by the French troops.

The position of the German columns which have gained a footing on the south bank of the Marne have become perilous, while to the east of Rheims the German efforts to advance have each time been foiled.

Comparatively slow progress has been made by the enemy on the front west of Rheims. His hope of effecting a break in the line was not realized.

The Allies' method of defense proved wonderfully efficient everywhere resulting in maintaining the army intact.

FAILS TO SEE LIGHT

Baron Barlas Looks Upon Austria as on Defensive.

AMSTERDAM, July 17.—The Austro-Hungarian government regards the war as "senseless and purposeless bloodshed" and believes it might be ended at the moment when the Allies again manifest feelings of humanity. Baron Barlas, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister made this statement in the concluding portion of his address to the Austrian and Hungarian premiers, Tuesday, according to dispatches from Vienna. The foreign minister said:

"It is unnecessary further to characterize this method of fighting. Our races indignantly disavow it. The resolute battle of defense must now be carried on to a good and until it brings us the security necessary for our future peaceful existence."

EIGHTY-TWO OF CLASS OF 1918 PASS IN TESTS

Examinations Conducted This Morning in District No. 5.

EIGHTY-SIX ANSWER CALL

One is Rejected, One is Classified for Limited Service, the Remaining Two Are to be Sent to Uniontown for Another Examination.

Out of 86 registrants of the class of 1918 examined by Local Board for District No. 5 this morning 82 successfully passed the physical tests and will be called on the examination of Class I of the class of 1917. Only one registrant out of the entire number was rejected. One was placed in the limited service class and two were referred to the medical advisory board to be reexamined at Uniontown in the near future.

The excellent physique of the new class of registrants is shown by the number which successfully passed the tests. The new class, composed of men not above 21 years of age, as a whole is ready to go to the front at once if necessary.

Nine young men made application to go to school for special training as automobile mechanics. Three others asked to be allowed to go to Camp Lee on July 23 with the increment which leaves here on that day. They are Michael DePaulis, Gabriel Warfongalis and Jesse W. Piper.

The nine who want to take special training are Harry E. Mitchell, H. L. Smiley, Boyd P. Warner, James P. Workman, Charles L. Kingan, Ralph Worthington, Kaymer, P. Beal, William McKinley Hall and Earl Williams. The examinations were conducted by Drs. J. H. Hazlett and C. W. Uts.

The following were examined:

Miles Klipa, Michael McK. Santer, Luis Poll, Bryan Wells, Clark Rowan, William McK. Hall, John A. Thrasher, Come Bailey, Earl M. Williams, Nick Siders, David E. Singo, Milton Snyder, Virgil D. Conly, George W. Dumbauld, James O. Solomon, Brown Hall, Charles W. Britt, Harry B. Brown, Albert H. Schmiedke, Andrew E. Lipovsky, Frank C. Hartzell, Francis M. Cunningham, Victor C. Burnworth, Richard Cramer, Renel White, Joseph Vansil, George W. Garland, Edward Liston, George T. McCormick, Clifford B. Morrison, Bruce McClelland Hall, Harry Leonard Spaw, James P. Workman, Harry L. Smiley, Boyd P. Warner, Bryan J. Newmyer, Harry E. Mitchell, George Lovas.

LOCAL MEN NOT ENGAGED

Probability is That Soon 110th Regiment Will be in Great Battle.

Side by side with other American troops on the Marne front in France are about 2,500 Pennsylvanians, according to word from Washington, but so far as is known they do not include the 28th division in which is the 110th Regiment and the boys of Connellsville and vicinity who are members of Company D and the sanitary detachment of that command. The men engaged are of the first army corps.

The 28th division is a part of the second army corps. If the Germans continue to gain it is accepted as certain, however, that the second corps will soon be involved in the titanic struggle.

SPEECH STIRS WORKERS

They Make Solemn Pledge to Work Every Day to Win the War.

ATROCITIES DESCRIBED

Allies Must Demand Million Drops of German Blood for Every Drop of Allied Blood Shed, Captain Declares; Pittsburg Attorney Calls for Coke.

I promise, as I shall answer to my God for my word and deed, that I will work not only until the war is over but until the war is won, in the name of God and the United States of America.

This pledge, in the interest of winning the war and as quickly as possible, was taken with upraised hands by several hundred persons assembled at the playgrounds at the Davidson coke plant last evening at a rally held under the auspices of the United States Shipping Board and following stirring addresses by Attorney J. E. Laughlin of Pittsburg and Captain J. C. Curran of the British navy. In the assembly were men and women, not only those connected with the Davidson plant but many others. All gave their promise to work and work steadily, though the efforts of the speakers were directed principally toward the production of coal and coke.

A bitter arraignment of Germany, its leaders and its people was contained in the address of Captain Curran. The United States government, he vehemently declared, made a mistake when it drew a distinction between the German people and the German leaders. They are all alike. There are no good Germans," he shouted. After detailing atrocities of which he said he had personal knowledge, he said that Germans in America should be ashamed of their nationality. They should, he declared, forget they ever were Germans.

In support of his charge against the German people he related atrocities perpetrated by them of which he said he knew personally. His experience with German Red Cross nurses was described as typical of the attitude of the German common people. On his way through Belgium as a German prisoner, Captain Curran said, he said, nurses spit in water and throw it in the faces of wounded men when they begged for a drink, calling them "English pigs."

In this connection Captain Curran said the vessel he commanded was attacked in mid-Atlantic on November 6, 1916, by the German raider Moewe. The raider flew the Swedish flag. Seventy of the crew were killed and 40 wounded. The survivors were placed below deck in the Moewe and kept there, without seeing light, for 24 days, and under horrible sanitary conditions. No attention was paid to the wounded. It was, he emphasized, November 5 when they were captured. It was February 5 before the wounded who survived were given a drop of medicine or a bandage.

During his stay in German prison camps, covering a period of 15 months, Captain Curran said he saw many atrocious acts. Men in the last stages of tuberculosis, he said, with temperatures running 102 to 104, were punished for slight infractions by being taken to stakes with their arms above their heads until ligaments were loose. They were beaten with steel jacketed rubber hose. They were taken to the tops of coke ovens and compelled to stand there in bare feet until the flesh sizzled off.

Will Salvage Ships

Machine to Recover Submarine Vessels Succeeds in Test.

NEW YORK, July 17.—An electrically driven diving machine designed to make possible the recovery of steel vessels sunk by German submarines was given a successful private test in Long Island sound. The machine, which carries a crew of two men, is equipped with propellers capable of driving it directly to the side of a submerged ship, to which it clings by means of magnets. Power is generated on a surface barge and transmitted by cable. A riveting attachment is intended to fasten portions to the vessel.

In the test, the machine went down 98 feet of water and brought to the surface a heavy steel plate.

At the Battle of the Tagliamento

9,000 Italians were captured, he related. "When I left Germany in February, I went on, '9,000 of them survived. The remainder starved to death."

Captain Curran said he saw men taken from sick and death beds and compelled to shovel snow, while German women and children stood by, jeered at them, threw filth at them and spat upon them. He told this to emphasize his claim that the Germans are all alike—brutes.

SILK MILL FOREMAN TO ENTER SERVICE

Connellsville Silk mill was the scene of a very pleasant event last evening, Harry Martin, general foreman, of that institution, having been called for military service, and was leaving for his home town, Wilkes-Barre, where he is ordered to report for duty. The girls of the winding department decided to give him a farewell send-off, in the shape of a party, a get-together event, to which they invited him to say their good-byes. The manager, Mr. Mottershead, gave the girls permission to use the unoccupied space on the first floor for dancing and other amusements and the office and packing rooms in which to serve luncheon and refreshments. The early part of the evening was spent in games and other amusements in which all present participated. At 10:30 luncheon and refreshments were served by the girls. Mr. Doherty, acting for the girls, explained in a few words the sense of the gathering and called upon Mr. Martin to say something. He answered by thanking the girls for the spirit of friendliness shown. Mr. Doherty, then called on Mr. Mottershead, Clinton Snyder, George H. Seelig and Miss Anna Tremba, each of which responded in terms fitting the occasion. At 11:30 many of the girls who live out of town said their good-byes and good wishes for his safe return.

COMMANDER OF THE COMFORT

Nature Protects Butterfly

When the butterfly is at rest, it folds its wings over its back, so that only the drab, protective colored lower surface is visible. In this posture the insect is of very low prominence from any angle.

The moth, unlike the butterfly, flies at night. Obviously, bright coloring would be to no purpose in attracting mates. The moth is garbed in dull tints, which render it inconspicuous during the day, its period of rest. There is no need of hiding the upper surface of its wings; so a convenient means to distinguish moths from butterflies is the fact that the latter, when at rest, fold their wings above their backs, as stated, while the former spread their wings out flat.

How Firefly Feeds

The pretty firefly has honors other than as the poetic glimmering glow-worm. He has a very mild and innocent mouth and cannot masticate solids. His diet is mucus. He gently caresses and tweaks the exposed part of the snail, dragging the unfortunate shell inhabitant. "By repeated tiny bites, similar to the tweaks we saw distributed at the outset, the flesh of the mollusc is converted into a gruel." This liquid-eating glow-worm proceeds to drink. Afterward you will find the snail's shell perfectly empty. The entire animal has been chemically dissolved into a proper soup for the firefly's delicate digestion.

War Prisoners to Form Club

A dozen British prisoners of war who had escaped from Germany met at a dinner recently given in London to celebrate their escape. At this dinner it was decided to form a club, membership of which was to be confined to those who have succeeded in making their way out of a prisoners' camp or internment camp in Germany. The site of the club premises has not yet been settled, but the club will certainly be the most novel thing of its kind in London.

Speak Distinctly, Listen Intently When You Telephone

PROPER telephone usage is always in order, and particularly in these times when great demands are made on telephone service.

In making your telephone calls, speak distinctly and directly into the telephone mouthpiece or transmitter. Listen carefully and concentrate on what is being said, then no repetitions will be necessary, no conversations needlessly prolonged and no important calls delayed because of a prolonged use of telephone lines and service.

These suggestions are offered in the belief that you will put them into practice in order not only that wastes in telephone usage may be eliminated but adequate service may be available, always, for all needs. At the same time, your conversations will be smooth and satisfying.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

Surgeons General Gorgas and Blaisdell of the army and navy, have appealed to the American Red Cross to recruit 25,000 nurses in a campaign which began June 8. The Red Cross has issued several pamphlets urging trained nurses to enroll for war service and every trained nurse in this country should answer the call. It may be months before some nurses may be called to the service and many may not be called at all, but all should register. Then the government can call out the 25,000 that it needs at once.

It is stated that 70 per cent of the registered nurses in America are in private employment—that is, not in institutions. The public must reduce its calls upon trained nurses and employ practical nurses instead so as to release these young women for war service.

How to Enroll as a Red Cross Nurse.
Nurses desiring general information regarding Red Cross work should address: Department of Nursing, American Red Cross, Washington, D. C. Or applications may be made through any local Red Cross chapter. Nurses residing in the central division of the country may send direct to Red Cross Central Division, 180 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The Duties of a Red Cross Nurse.
"Red Cross nurses assigned to military hospitals are charged with the nursing care of the sick and wounded of the army and navy and become temporarily members of the army and navy corps. They are subject to all the rules and regulations governing the service. They are responsible to the chief nurse of the Army and Navy Nurse corps under the commanding officer of the hospital to which they are assigned and are expected to accept her authority without question."

Requirements for Red Cross Nursing Service.
"To be eligible for enrollment a nurse must be a graduate of a recognized school for nurses, giving at least two years' course of training in a general hospital. In states where registration is provided by law, an applicant, to be eligible for enrollment, must be registered. She must be at least twenty-one years of age."

Physical Standards.
"During the period of the war a physical examination certificate should be filed with other application papers at the time of enrollment."

What Recreational Features Are There?
Leaves of absence are granted from time to time as the exigencies of the service permit. The surgeon general's office is making every effort to provide comfortable living quarters for the nurses. The Red Cross has completed plans for the building of a house for nurses at every army camp in the United States. These houses will consist of an assembly hall, library, sewing room and kitchen, and will add greatly to the comfort of the nurses. The assembly hall has been so planned as to make it suitable for dancing, receptions, a lounge room and the showing of motion pictures."

Compensation.
The minimum salary for service in the United States is $50 per month, and $60 monthly for service abroad, with increased pay for chief nurses. Maintenance is provided for. Special salary arrangements are made where maintenance is not provided.

"Legislation is now pending before congress which if passed will provide definite rank for nurses, with increases in pay."

The above quotations are taken from a booklet entitled "A Book of Information for Graduate Nurses."

Use of Tulle.

Tulle is constantly being put to new uses. Now it is finding a new method of exploitation in a shoulder cap made of a succession of little ruffles posed on a self-foundation. Of course there are ribbons—narrow grain, in color delicately contrasting with the pink of the tulle.

Fish Eggs.

The cod is estimated to yield 45,000,000 eggs each season. As many as 8,000,000, 9,000,000 and even 9,500,000 eggs have been found in the roe of a single cod. An eel was caught in Scotland some years ago which contained upward of 10,000,000 eggs. This, however, would appear to have been an exceptional find, and it is generally admitted that the cod is more prolific than any other fish. Though not equalling the cod, many kinds of fish are exceedingly prolific. More than 30,000 eggs have been counted in a herring, 38,000 in a smelt, 1,000,000 in a sole, 1,120,000 in a roach, 3,000,000 in a sturgeon, 342,000 in a carp, 88,000 in a tench, 540,000 in a mackerel, 962,000 in a perch, and 1,357,000 in a flounder. The oyster is also very prolific. It has been ascertained by recent observation that in the liquor of their shells small oysters can be seen by aid of the microscope—120 in the space of an inch, covered with shells, and swimming actively about. A herring weighing six or seven ounces is provided with about 30,000 eggs. It has been estimated that in three years a single pair of herrings could be left to breed and multiply undisturbed for a period of 20 years they would yield an amount of fish equal in bulk to the globe—London "Tit-Bits."

When Beards Were Taxed.

In the reign of Elizabeth every beard of a fortnight's growth was subject to a tax. Peter the Great, in 1705, imposed a tax upon the beards of the Russian nobles of 100 rubles, while the common people's beard tax amounted to one kopeck. This tax caused much dissatisfaction, but in spite of this the impost was extended to St. Petersburg in 1714. The tax on beards was confirmed by Catherine II in 1778, by Peter II in 1728, by Empress Anne in 1731, and in 1743 by the Empress Elizabeth. It was repealed by Catherine II in 1762. In France a beard tax was imposed upon the clergy. The celebrated Duprat, lord high chancellor of France, was the adviser of the measure, and a bill was published by the pope enjoining the clergy to shave their chins. Then a tax was levied by the king upon all who wished to be exempted from the harsh decree. The bishop and others who could afford the means paid the tax, but the poorer clergy were obliged to yield at the point of the razor—London "Tit-Bits."

Many Lambs Killed by Rattlers.
Rattlers, always plentiful in parts of Washington state, are this year more numerous than in any previous season. Sheepmen are forcibly reminded of the fact by the loss of lambs. Older sheep know the menace in the tattoo of the rattlesnake, and will change their course at the sound, but the lambs are often bitten. There is nothing that can be done for the relief of a lamb which has been bitten. It dies in a little while—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Insists That Frail, Nervous Women Can Speedily Become Strong and Vigorous

A Vigorous Healthy Body, Sparkling Eyes and Health-Colored Cheeks Come in Two Weeks, Says Discoverer of Bio-feron.

World's Grandest Health Builder Costs Nothing Unless It Gives to Women the Buoyant Health They Long for.

It is safe to say that right here in this big city are tens of thousands of weak, nervous, run-down, depressed women who in two weeks' time could make themselves so healthy, so attractive and so keen-minded that they would compel the admiration of all their friends.

The vital health-building elements that these despondent women lack are all plentifully supplied in Bio-feron. If you are ambitious, crave success in life, want to have a healthy, vigorous body, clear skin and eyes that show no dullness, make up your mind to get a package of Bio-feron right away.

It costs but little and you can get an original package at any drugist anywhere.

Take two tablets after each meal and one at bedtime—seven a day for seven days—then one after meals till all are gone. Then if you don't feel twice as good, look twice as attractive and feel twice as strong as before you started, your money is waiting for you. It belongs to you, for the discoverer of Bio-feron doesn't want one penny of it unless it fulfills all claims.

Note to Physicians: There is no secret about the formula of Bio-feron. It is printed on every package. Here it is: Lactin, Calcium Glycero-phosphate, Iron, Potassium, Manganese, Pantoic Acid, Nux Vomica, Fowl, Gentian, Phosphatidasein, Oleoresin, Calcium, Kola.

JAPANESE MINISTER OF WAR

Maj. Gen. Kenichi Okshima, Japanese minister of army affairs.

An Aid to Memory.

The stranger in camp pointed to a stack of army hats and caps on a shelf behind the desk in the "Y" hut. Said he to the secretary:

"I didn't know you ran a clothing store."

"We don't," replied the secretary. "Stick around a minute and you'll understand."

Before the minute had ended, a lad in khaki came in.

"Got a baseball to lend me?" he asked the man at the desk.

"Sure thing."

The secretary produced a ball from a box under the counter, the soldier seized it, left his hat in pawn and rushed away bareheaded toward the playing field.

"We tried keeping books on our athletic equipment at first," said the secretary. "But this way is simpler and more effective. We never run out of baseballs any more."

OKLAHOMA GIVES THIRD AND CONSTANTLY INCREASES QUOTA OF NATION'S OIL SUPPLY

WAR DEMAND FOR PRECIOUS FLUID GROWS AT PAGE WHICH ALARMS EXPERTS AND DRAINS OUR RESERVE

The demands of the war have brought Oklahoma into the limelight, or better still the spotlight, for the state is a mighty gasoline torch, the flame of which is as important to us as the pillar of fire to the Israelites. It will increase in importance as the war goes on.

Upon it will depend largely the movement of the thousands of airplanes which we are sending to Europe, of the motor trucks in the field, of many of our vessels at sea and even of the military tanks, the warlike leviathans of the land which are now traveling over the trenches, the advance guard of our army.

The Oklahoma oil fields lead the United States in the production of crude petroleum. It is the largest field of high grade oil in the entire world. Last year Oklahoma produced 18,000,000 barrels of crude oil; 82% of the high grade oil of the world. The oil fields of Oklahoma are just a little more than scratched. There will be many large pools uncovered in that state in the next few months.

To give an idea of the magnitude of this production, Oklahoma produced more than twice as much oil as the combined production of the following states: Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, New York, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois. According to the government report, the combined production of these states was approximately 46,000,000 barrels, as compared to Oklahoma's production of 18,000,000 barrels.

Taking into consideration the enormously increasing demand for oil and the price which is being paid now and is bound to be constantly on the increase for Oklahoma crude oil, there will be more money made in the Oklahoma oil fields in the next five years than has been in the past ten years.

THERE HAVE BEEN MORE FORTUNES MADE IN OIL

In Oklahoma by the average small investor than in any other state in the Union, and Oklahoma has more actual millionaires in proportion to population than any other place on the globe.

The Daily Oklahoman, one of the leading newspapers of the Southwest, says that over 1,200 oil companies are paying a "production tax" to the state, and that over 79,000 land owners are receiving money from the oil business in Oklahoma.

During the month of January in the Oklahoma oil fields there were 403 wells completed, 48 of which were dry holes, 30 were gas wells, and the balance oil wells, thus 87% of the wells drilled during the month of January were productive. At the close of that month there were 1,225 wells drilling and 288 rigs were being built.

There are 60 independent refineries in Oklahoma that have pipe lines to gather up the oil from the wells, and thus we have competition for the purchase of crude oil. The oil business is done on a spot cash basis.

The YOUNGSTOWN POOL in Eastern Oklahoma is rapidly developing into a veritable giant. The first big well in this new field was drilled in December last, and has today more than two dozen wells gushing from 400 to 4,000 barrels of this liquid gold daily, and with close to 50 wells new drilling, promises to make its present production of 25,000 barrels daily seem small.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch of June 3, 1918, says: "Not a week has passed for some time but that it has recorded one or more big new wells in the Youngstown Pool, which continues the sensation in Oklahoma."

An eighty-acre lease with room for twenty wells, lying close enough to these big wells for the wind to shower oil across the property, commands a fabulous price when the oil men race for it and fight for it, but we won because the owner knew that we would begin drilling operations right away.

We organized a small company—THE YOUNGSTOWN POOL OIL COMPANY—with a capital stock of only $100,000, to drill this property up, and the cost of the lease used about all our ready cash, and we are compelled to sell a portion of the shares of stock in this company to quickly provide the funds for drilling.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

This is your chance to make a fortune by investing in our drilling allotment of stock. Our capitalization is small. Our possibilities are tremendous. Big wells are drilling nearer and nearer to our lease. Only a little way to the northeast of us lies the famous Eggs pool, which has produced thousands and thousands of barrels of oil. We have got a 5,000 or 10,000 barrel gusher, then every dollar you invest with us to bring in our first well should return you a hundred fold, possibly 1,000 for one within a few short weeks.

THIS WILL BE THE LAST ALLOTMENT TO BE SOLD if this well comes in a big gusher. The proceeds derived from a 2,000 or 3,000 barrel well will drill up the entire lease within a short time from the sale of oil, then the proceeds from the sale of our oil will go into a dividend fund which should give us or more a year, to be divided among the Youngstown Pool Oil Company stockholders. Think what this means to the stockholders of this Company only capitalized for $100,000, and with only a small part of this issued; this would leave a few of us to divide the profits with.

REMEMBER THE UNISSUED SHARES OF STOCK DO NOT DRAW DIVIDENDS, and your stock should be worth 50 to 500% for one, besides your interest in from 5,000 to 25,000 barrels of oil daily production. You can't afford to stay out. Get in today while you can buy this stock at 20 cents.

Opportunity only knocks at your door once in a lifetime, and it's up to you to grasp it now. A 2,000 barrel well on our lease would make our Company worth $400,000. The oil is there, she's all around us, big producing wells. It will undoubtedly mean a fortune to you who help us drill. This stock should all be sold and off the market within a short time. Don't let the wise ones beat you in it and gobble it all up, and leave you wishing you had followed our advice after a monstrous gusher has been brought in, making thousands of dollars for the lucky stockholders.

DO IT NOW. BUY TODAY. REJOICE TOMORROW

Write the Company a check, send the money for just as many shares at the present price of 20 cents as you can afford to buy.

REMEMBER THERE WILL BE ONLY A FEW OF US TO DIVIDE THE PROFITS WITH

This is the advantage of buying stock in a company with a small capitalization and with the outlook for a successful future.

A SURE WINNING CHANCE OF A LIFETIME FOR YOU IF YOU TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT.

If you could stand and see the big gushers filling tank after tank with the black liquid gold and the drills pounding away in every direction from our lease, you would send in every dollar you could rake and scrape and gather together for your share of a waiting fortune in the

WHY THE DRIVE IS FAILING.

The present German drive, which was designed as a sweep down both sides of the Marne to Paris, is failing for three reasons, all "made in Germany."

First, too much reliance was placed upon the exhaustion of the French army, which Germany believed, or at least sought to have the German people believe, had come about.

Second, little account seems to have been taken of the loss of morale among the German troops.

Third, and perhaps most important of all, was the contemptuous disregard of the fighting abilities of the American soldiers.

Without material change in their tactics the Germans evidently believed that by massing large bodies of troops and sending them in a succession of waves against the enemy the momentum of the movement would prove as irresistible as in former drives. This time they have been cooled, badly and sadly cooled. While there has been slight yielding of ground here and there under the impact of a larger force, there has been counter attacks that have completely stopped the mad rush of the oncoming of a larger force, there have been had with the Americans our soldiers have waited until the advancing waves were within certain machine gun and rifle range then, with a merciless and accurate hail of bullets, they have strewn the ground before them with piling corpses of the Hun. So determined, so vigorous and so effective has been the resistance to the assaults that ground occupied by the French and Americans has been held, or regained after temporary withdrawal, upon practically all sectors. The Hun has been baffled and his spirit is apparently breaking under the terrific strain he is making without gaining any local objectives that would be of value in a subsequent assault.

As in all previous offensives the supreme strength at the command of the Hun has been exerted on the initial drive. As the Allies have recovered from the first shocks, they have always been able to reduce the progress of the drive and eventually bring them to a complete halt. In the present offensive the halt has been called almost at the beginning. There will be further and perhaps still more determined and powerful attempts by the Germans to break the solid wall that the French and American soldiers have formed as a barrier on the road to Paris. To stimulate resistance to further Hun attacks, the Americans, too, have appropriated, but express in somewhat different form, will be found to have all the force and virtue of the Marne that it had at Verdun.

This will prove to be a fourth reason—made in France and America—why the German drive is failing and why it will continue to fail.

GLORY ENOUGH FOR ALL.

Proud as we are of the valorous conduct of the American in the terrific struggle now waging along the Marne, and flattered as we may be by the signal honor France has conferred upon our troops by proclaiming them the "Defenders of Paris," we must not overlook the significant part the war-worn soldiers of France have taken in holding back the Hun. Their integrity and bravery in resisting the successive waves of the enemy, their grit in holding important positions, and their dash in recovering ground from which they were forced to retire, should excite admiration equal to that we have for the deeds of our own soldiers.

In fact, it would be ludicrous to make comparisons. We are brothers with the French, British and Italians in this big job of freeing the earth of Prussian autocracy. Whatever is done singly or jointly is to achieve a common end. In that there will be glory enough for all.

THE CURB MARKET.

While the opening of the curb market did not draw as many growers of farm and garden products to the city as had been expected, the results of the first day gives promise of the success of the plan. By their attendance in large numbers it was proven that the housewives of the city are anxious to have access to the first sources of supply in the purchase of vegetables and other seasonable products. This fact having been established there should be no hesitancy upon part of the growers to bring their products to the market and thus insure its permanent success.

The growers who came to the market yesterday found no difficulty in disposing of all their goods within a very short period of time and were able to return to their farms without the loss of a day as is necessary when going from house to house to find customers. This feature ought, and no doubt will, make the market a popular institution with the farmers. The growing and harvesting seasons are always busy days on the farm hence any plan to economize time means money to the farmer.

The present season has been so backward that garden crops have been very slow to mature. As a result there will probably be a lack of variety and perhaps also of quantity of products for the first week or two during the market season, but presently it will be found that larger supplies will become available. If the market plan progresses as it gives every promise of doing the fact that this section needs more market gardeners will become still plainer. Inasmuch as we have depended very largely upon Conneltsville to supply our fruits and vegetables, market gardening in this section has made very little development.

With what is probably one of the best markets in the country at their very doors the farmers and gardeners of the surrounding country have reasonable assurance that they will have opportunity to profitably dispose of all and everything they can produce. The success of the curb market should, therefore, stimulate the market gardening industry in this vicinity, it being almost certain that once the market is well under way that it will continue steadily to enlarge. The extent to which it may grow will depend almost altogether upon the willingness and ability of the producers to provide the supplies. If these are kept to market standards and fair prices are adhered to there will be no lack of buyers.

We are ready to enter into peace negotiations with all our opponents," says the Austro-Hungarian minister who dare make no utterance without the approval of his supreme lord and master, Kaiser Bill. Nobody is restraining either Austria or Germany from complying with the first condition of peace negotiations, which is merely to surrender unconditionally.

Editors sometimes feel the heavy hand of the sheriff but not often of the postmaster. But this functionary is now a sort of censor since his power to bring disloyal and offending scribbles to their senses.

It will take more than stopping the German drive to end the war. It will end when all allied drive toward Berlin is stopped by an unconditional surrender of the Hun. But we cannot now stop to consider the cost, neither can we rest at single efforts of activity to make that drive irresistible.

The harvest drive is certain to attain all objectives now that Conneltsville's champions are on the firing line with large reserves in support.

No Palmer-McCormick strong-arm tactics will be employed in making the Republican state platform. Representatives of the whole party, not a faction, will draft this important document.

Sentiment in The Trenches

By Francis Rogers.

Our boys in France are maturing fast. The conditions amid which they live tend both to clarify and to deepen their thoughts. They bear no responsibility for their own physical needs; food, shelter and clothing are all provided for them. Many, if not most of them, have assigned the greater part of their pay to their families and no efforts of theirs can increase their income. During the day and often at night they are almost constantly under orders; in doing only what they are told they are doing their full duty. Their only real responsibility is for the conduct of their own thoughts.

In intercourse with our soldiers in France one soon discovers that many of them are living an active, often an excited, inner life. The gossip that is used to satisfy their hours of leisure no longer meets their need for mental refreshment, and their minds seem to crave the solid nourishments to be found in poetry and religion.

Not only do they read poetry; they write it. We met one boy who had composed reams of "vers libre" and whose letters home, his official censor told us, were written in the same medium.

Confronted with the most serious of all problems, that of death, and what comes after it, the boys' thoughts turn often towards religion, and so often to the traditional legends in which they were brought up as to the significance to them personally of the sacrifice they hold themselves prepared to make. The Y. M. C. A. secretaries and the chaplains and their willing to lay bare and discuss the most intimate problems of their lives. The freedom of their religious thought is away from the formalism of dogma and doctrine and towards a simple code of gallantry and self-forgetfulness that comes to us from the battle line, show this code expresses itself in deeds. Two incidents that have been reported to me show how it expresses itself in words.

In the course of a hot battle a detachment of American soldiers was cut off and surrounded by the enemy. Some one must cut his way through to where relief could be obtained. A private, generally known as a "rough-neck," volunteered and performed this dangerous service. Afterwards he confided to a Salvation Army worker that, although he never before had prayed, this time he had offered a prayer before he left his lines.

"But what did you say?"

"Oh," I said, "God, I don't give a damn what happens to me, but please keep me safe till I can bring back help for these boys here."

Another boy confessed that he always prayed before he went over the top. He did not pray to be saved from all harm, for that would seem as if he were taking an unfair advantage of the fellows who fought or did not know how to pray; he prayed only that no matter what happened he might be given the strength to bear himself like a brave man. Could the most pious of saints have framed a nobler prayer than this?

NOTICES SENT OUT

To Registrants of District 7, Westmoreland County of Examination.

SCOTTSBURGH, July 17.—Local Board No. 7 of Westmoreland county is sending out notices for the examination of registrants of the 1918 class on next Friday, beginning at 8 o'clock that morning. No examination will be held at Hormie in this time, but there will be examinations at West Newton, the headquarters of the board, in the high school building, and at the Y. M. C. A. building in Scottsdale.

At each of the two places there will be about 100 registrants called.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason.

IN COLORADO.

"Mid Colorado's giant hills I've set for the summer time, and feel the old cadence of the hills, when viewing spectacles sublime. I'd like to talk of what I see, of snowy peaks, of wondrous dells, of crystal torrents wild and free, for all these things are wearing bills. But when I talk some tour-ist guy, and try to tell him how I feel, he paws the earth, and makes reply: 'Well, whip the Hun, I'll bet a wheel. The British and the French are tired, they've scrapped so long their legs are sore; at least a million guns were fired, their feet are wet with Prussian gore. But now our boys are getting there in numbers large enough to note; their comrades suffer in the air, and they will get the Teuton goat. Oh, yes; these hills are out of sight, the raging torrents are O. K., but when our boys are out to fight, what price are hills and torrents, pray? The Prussians fight with dragging sleep, they've scrapped so long they're human wrecks, and soon our soldiers will be there, with 'win' their legs around their necks. Oh, yes, that vista is a peach, that landscape surely takes the eye; but who would of such trifles preach, when we are out to squelch the Hun? Ah, me, for some congenial soul, to pass with me the summertime, to sit with me upon a knoll, and talk of scenery sublime!"

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

THE WORRIED SOLDIER.

He was dreaming through the drilling; he was a half a mile behind; He was marching like a soldier who had something on his mind; And the colonel, who was watching as his boys were on review, Couldn't understand the trouble, but the sergeant-major knew.

Once he broke the line by missing the command to make a wheel; And they thundered out at him till his brain began to reel; His captain called him lazy; his lieutenant scolded him too; And they wondered why he faltered; but the sergeant-major knew.

When at last the drill was over and the line had been dismissed, They put the blundering soldier on their extra-duty list; But the sergeant-major saved him when the colonel heard him say: "He hasn't had a letter from his folks in many a day."

Would you help him in his battle, would you keep his mind on duty? Then send some cheerful message every day or two to him; Every soldier understands it, when they're passing out the mail; The boy who is forgotten is the boy who's sure to fail.

WINNERS OF TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS VOLUNTEER TO FIGHT FOR UNCLE SAM

The tennis players of the Ohio city, winners and national champion in the last tennis season, Alexander and Throckmorton, have joined Uncle Sam's naval service. Alexander, who was the champion of the Ohio matches, Harold Throckmorton, has gone in for heavy coast artillery, and has been assigned to duty at Fort Wadsworth, Alaska. Throckmorton was the national patriotic champion of the Ohio matches.

SLOW ONE HARD FOR TURNER

Proper George Mullin Was Willing to Let Opposing Player Make Perfect Average.

Terry Turner cannot just remember the date, but it must have been several years ago, as George Mullin was pitching for Detroit. During his first five times up, Terry made four singles and a triple off the Tiger pitcher. Up for the sixth time Mullin said: "Terry, I want you to make it six straight in a row, as you fellows have no heat anyway."

BASEBALL STORIES

Bill Hochman still packs away a healthy punch in that war club of his.

Joe Boehling, erstwhile southpaw of the Senators and Indians, has been ordered to report at Camp Lee.

Few runs are scored off Stanley Coveleski of the Cleveland club. When he comes it is usually by a low score.

Arthur C. Tomlinson, captain of the Wesleyan college baseball team, has left college to enter naval aviation.

Once upon a time there was a ball player who quit the game while in his prime. He decided to be a shipyard.

Manager Barrow of the Red Sox continues in his hunt for reserve material. The Red Sox are very keen in this regard.

San Francisco to the Coast league is what New York is to the National and a talented team there is disturbing the magazine.

Lee Magee continues to hit the ball for Muddy's Reds, and he has played no small part in the recent success of the Redland team.

Bill Klein is the only umpire in the league who has been in a head clash with a batter, and that was in the last game when a batter hit him on the head.

Looks like John McGraw really had helped the Cincinnati Reds when he let Muddy leave George Smith. Why or how, this collection is pitching good ball.

Buy Lambson, the young twister who joined the Pirates from Providence, has been sent back. Baseball found he wasn't wise enough for the big top.

There have been a few questions as to whether Bill James will come back with the Boston Braves. Uncle Sam says no, but Bill has been called in the draft.

Bill Collins is accused of trying to help Mike Murphy in his garden work on the White Sox. One can't blame one of the old A's for attempting to help another.

At a recent meeting of the Pacific Coast league managers it was voted to complete the season unless some new and drastic measure puts a stop to baseball altogether.

Attention league pitchers frequently are kept in line as they work the mound. It was going great when Alvin Karpis said:

George Davis, the scout who discovered Harry Harper for the Grizzlies, has been in a new battery for the St. Louis Cardinals.

With the departure of Woodall and Woodall from the New York team, Clarence Kuntz is the only player remaining who is in their camp and subject to only call. He expects to go any day now.

Shorewood Magee has come to life with a vengeance. He is playing well and showing out various catches.

PECULIAR PLAY AT ST. LOUIS

Decision of Umpire Rigler in Game Between Dodgers and Cardinals Leads to Protest.

A peculiar play in the St. Louis-Brooklyn game led to a protest by Ivan Olson of the Dodgers. In the sixth inning with Build on second Cruise hit a liner to center which Hickman stopped but failed to hold. Baird reached and touched third base, but thinking the ball had been caught, started back toward second. After going back about twenty feet he was wised up by the coaches and cut across the diamond to the home plate and scored. Umpire Rigler ruled that after a player had once touched third base he was not compelled to retouch. Olson protested the decision and was fired out of the game. The game was won by St. Louis 15 to 12.

DIAMOND NOTES

Another homer for Ruth. Wonder if the big fellow has nothing else in his system.

Ben Johnson, president of the American league, does not favor special railroad rates for ball players.

Hugo Bezdek and Dreyfuss are still chugging over the deal they made with the Brooklyn club last winter.

Good idea to have star players in the army come back to their clubs now and then when fatigues are granted.

When Bob Harrison read that Benny Kanf had been drafted he remarked: "It's too bad he wasn't called a little earlier."

The suspension of the "work or fight" order as applicable to major leaguers came as a big relief to many of the athletes.

Otto Jacobs, for the last two seasons a catcher for the Joliet team of the Chicago league, has been signed by Manager Rowland for the White Sox.

Pitcher Paul Musser and Shortstop Bruce Hartford of the Des Moines Western league ball club have been called for service in the National army.

Pichich, who is now catching for the Washington club, was once the property of the Yankees, though he never played a game with the New York team.

According to a Newark newspaper writer Joe Lamm is the real financial backer of the Newark Internationals. He also backs Buffalo and Syracuse, giving him three clubs in the league as his personal affair.

George Whitted, who recently enlisted in the army, says he wants to get over to France and do some fighting.

The American troops in France want baseball bats. But this by no means indicates they are planning for a home run.

Joe Cantillon isn't worried about players so long as they let him play ball. He dug up Roy Patterson and Long Tom Hughes recently and has Jimmy Williams, Otis Clymer and Claude Roman in reserve right in Minneapolis.

George Tyler's brother Fred, a catcher with the Worcester Eastern league club, has been summoned for duty in the army. Still another brother, Bill, has been signed by that club for a trial. The club southpaw comes from a baseball family.

Admirer of Clark Dickerson, former pitcher with the Cleveland Americans, are pleased with the announcement that he has been appointed a lieutenant in the National army. Dickerson was drafted last fall. He soon was promoted to corporal and later to sergeant. He had experience in a military school before he took up professional baseball.

BASEBALL PLAYERS TO TRAVEL IN MOTORCARS

Automobiles will be used by the Pacific Coast Baseball league in transporting the teams between San Francisco and Los Angeles, a distance of nearly 500 miles. It was announced by Allan T. Baum, president of the league.

The increased railroad and Pullman fares, effective June 10, made it imperative for the league to take this step, he said. The expenses of automobile transportation, he said, would be about the same as railroad fare under the present rates.

FAMOUS ATHLETE AT PHILADELPHIA MEET

The annual intercollegiate meet at Franklin field, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, was witnessed by Lieut. John Paul Jones, world champion mile runner, and hero athlete of Cornell university.

SCOUTS IN FOR TOUGH YEAR

Ivory Hunters in for Most Strenuous Season, Says Jack McAllister of Indians.

The baseball scout who gets through this season without nervous prostration or something worse will be lucky. That's the opinion of Jack McAllister, scout of the Cleveland Indians, who predicts this will be the most strenuous year the ivory hunters have ever had.

"Every ball club will have to keep plugging up holes during the season," McAllister said. "Men will be lost in the army draft right along and the wise manager and scout must anticipate these losses and get men who may fill in as soon as the regulars are called."

"What is even more difficult from our standpoint is that we cannot go into the minors and take men in the draft age, as it wouldn't be long until their places would have to be filled. It resolves itself into a proposition of getting men either over or under the draft age, and players of this class are either apt to be too inexperienced for big league play or too old to be of much service."

"Another difficulty is that the minors are hit as hard as the majors and are not willing to let loose of players as readily as in normal years."

ANDY KYLE IS HEADED RIGHT

Being a Canadian, He Didn't Think It Was Necessary to Register—Then He Enlists.

Andy Kyle, well-known minor leaguer, has gone into the army of Uncle Sam and this satisfied the demands of two nations. Kyle is of draft age, but being a Canadian, thought he did not have to register in the States. He found out differently and was hauled up and told where to head in. He headed by enlisting.

NO-HIT GAME FOR LEONARD

Victory Over Detroit Tigers Was His Second in American League—Nearly Perfect Game.

Dutch Leonard's no-hit game against the Detroit Tigers the other day was his second in the American league. He twirled the other one against the St. Louis Browns on August 30, 1916. A base on balls to Veach in the game at Detroit was the only thing that stood between Leonard and a perfect game.

Isabel Has "Useful" Plan. Frank Isabel, president of the Wichita club, has a scheme to utilize ball players in a "useful" occupation. He suggests that the players be turned loose in the harvest fields when the crops are ripe and be allowed to go back to baseball after completing the task.

GUNNER DEPEW

Albert N. Depew

EX-GUNNER AND CHIEF PETTY-OFFICER U. S. NAVY
MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN LEGION OF FRANCE
CAPTAIN GUN TURRET, FRENCH BATTLESHIP CASSARD
WINNER OF THE CROIX DE GUERRE

(Copyright 1918 by Kelly and Sullivan Co., Through Special Arrangement With the Courier-Post and Advertiser.)

All this time, "test you forget," we had no shoes, and no clothing—only what had once been our underwear. It is all right to be a "Coney Island snowbird" and pose around in your bathing suit in the drifts, because you are in good condition, and last but not least, because you do not have to do it. Figure out the other side of it for yourself.

They marched us into a field where there was nothing much but guns and ammunition and snow, and set us up in something like skirmish formation. We stood there for some time, and then we saw a lot of Hunns with the new long rifles coming toward us, yelling just as they did in battle, and we thought sure we were being used for practice targets. It is a good thing they halted and stopped, yelling when they did, or we would have started for them to fight it out, for we were not the kind of fellows to be bunched with hands in the air, and we would have been glad for a chance to get a few of them before they got us. But they did halt, and then surrounded us, and drilled us away through straws and woods and shallow water or slush. The women followed, too, and there were plenty of bricks and spit left. Women as well as men are the same the world over, they say. I wonder! You can just picture the women of, say, Rockland, Me., following a crowd of German prisoners that way, can't you? Not! But of course the women of Rockland are pretty crude—no Kultur at all—and Gott never commissioned President Wilson to take the lid off the strafe pot for him.

They drilled us along the docks, and it looked as though the whole German navy was tied up at Swinemunde. We saw many of the ships we had heard about, among them being the famous Vulkan, the mother-ship for submarines. There were many sailors loafing along the docks, and they gave the women a hand with their days' work. They were no better with a brick, but they had more ammunition when it came to spitting. One of them tripped a young boy by the name of Kelly, and as you would never doubt, Kelly picked up a rock and crashed the sailor with it. He was then bayoneted twice in the left leg. We began singing then, our popular favorite, "Kick up your heels," etc., etc., and when they heard us, how the swine started!

Then they drilled us past the German soldiers' quarters. The men were at rifle practice, and I guess all of us thought how handy we would be as targets. But when we got near them, they quit practicing and crowded around us yelling: "Raus! Zurück!"

Finally we got to the top of the hill, and were halted near the barracks while an officer read the martial law of Germany to us. At least we thought maybe that was it.

Finally they let us into the barracks, and the first thing we saw was a great pile of hay. That looked good to us, and we made a rush and dove into it. But the Hunns told us to take the hay and throw it in the middle of the road. They had to use force before we would do it. Finally we gave in, however, and started to carry it out. Some of the young boys were crying, and I do not blame them much.

But one of the boys tried to hide some of the hay behind a box and was caught doing it, and two sentries clouted him from one end of the barracks to the other. His nose was broken and his face mashed to a jelly. But there was nothing we could do, so we just wandered up and down the barracks, about as we did between docks on the Mowee, trying to keep warm.

While this marathon was on we heard a whistle blown very loudly, and when we looked out we saw a wagon piled up with "old tin cans." Then we were told to form single file, walk out to the wagon, and each get a can for himself. Each man had to take the first can he laid his hands on, and many of us got rusty ones with holes in them. So that about half an hour later, when we received barley coffee, and all we had to drink it from was the cans, lots of the men had to drink theirs almost in one gulp or lose half of it.

The barracks were very dirty and smelled horribly, and the men were still not even half clothed. We all looked filthy and smelled that way, and where the coat dress had rubbed off, we were very pale. And all of us were starved looking.

About eleven o'clock that morning the whistle blew again, and we came out and were given an aluminum spoon and a dish of soup. Then we cheered up and saw corned beef and cabbage for ourselves. An hour later they drilled us through the snow to the kuche. When we got there we stood in line until at least half-past twelve, and then the Germans shouted: "Nichts zu essen." But we did not know what that meant, so we just hung around there and waited. Then they started shouting, "Zurück! Zurück!" and drove us back to the barracks.

Later we heard the words "nichts zu essen" so often that we thought probably they meant "no eats." We had our reasons for thinking so, too. Those words, and "Raus!" and "Zurück!" were practically all we did hear, except, of course, various kinds of Schweinhunde.

It was awful to see the men when we got back to the barracks. Some of the boys from the Georgie, not much over twelve years old, were almost crazy, but even the older men were crying, many of them. It was nothing but torture all the time. They opened all the windows and doors in the barracks, and then we could not heat the room with our bodies. When we started to move around, to keep warm, they fired a few shots at us. I do not know whether they hit anyone or not; we had got so that we did not pay any attention to things like that. But it stopped us, and we had to stand still.

The Hunns thought we would take the rifles from the sentries and use them, too. I never saw a yellowish bunch of people in my life. I do not mean people. I wish I could publish what I really mean.

We had stoves in the barracks, but no coal or wood to burn. There were many boxes piled up there, but they belonged to the Germans. We would have burned them if we could, but the Germans made us carry them across the road. They weighed about 150 pounds apiece, and we were so weak that it was all we could do to lug them. And we had to carry them; they would not let us roll them. We were so cold and hungry that even that exercise did not warm us.

About 2:30 the whistle blew again, and the Hunns picked out a few men and took them down the road. We could not figure out why, but they came back about three o'clock, all of them with bread in their arms. They were chewing away on it when they had a chance. Whenever the sentries were not looking they would bite at it like a fish going after a worm. Each man carried five loaves.

When they got in the barracks the sentries made them put the bread down on the floor, and then, with their bayonets, the sentries cut each loaf once down the center lengthwise, and four times across, which meant ten men to a loaf about the size of an ordinary ten-cent loaf in this country now. They gave each of us a piece a little larger than a safety-match box.

The bread was hard and dark, and I really think they made it from trees. It had just exactly the same smell that the dirt around trees has.

We filed past the sentries single file to get our ration of this mud, and there was no chance of getting in line twice, for we had to keep on filing until we were out in the road, and stand there in the snow to eat it. We could not go back in the barracks until every man had been served.

Our meals were like this: A can of barley coffee in the morning; cabbage soup, so called, at noon; a tenth of a loaf of bread at 3 p. m. That was our menu day in and day out, the Kaiser's birthday, Lincoln's, May day, or any other time.

This cabbage soup was a great idea. We called it shadow soup, because the boys claimed they made it by hanging a cabbage over a barrel of water and letting the shadow fall on the water. We pretended, too, that if you found any cabbage in it, you could take your dish back for a second helping. But I never saw anybody get more than one dishful. All it was, was just spoiled water.

We tried to go to sleep that night, but there were so many sentries around us—and those of us who were not sick were wounded—that I do not think a man of us really slept. After a while I asked a sentry if I could go outside for a minute, but for some reason he would not let me. I had different ideas about it, so I stood around near the door, and when he turned his back I went out and around the corner of the barracks.

But one of the sentries there saw me and blew his whistle, and a guard of eight came up from somewhere and grabbed me. I tried to explain, but it was no use, because every time I said a word it meant another swat over the ear, so finally I gave it up.

Then they drilled me across the road to the officers' quarters. There were three officers there, and each of them asked me questions about all kinds of things, but never once mentioned my running out of the barracks. Then they gave the sentries some commands, and four of the sentries took me out and over to the barbed wire fence. There they tied me, face to the fence, arms over my head, and hands and feet lashed to the wire, and with a rope around my waist, too. I thought, then, that my lunch had come true, and that I would be crucified, like Morry and Brown.

They posted a sentry there in addition to the regular guards, and every time he walked past he would kick me or spit on me, or do both.

One time he kicked me so hard that a prong of the barbed wire gashed me over the left eye—the only one I can see with—and when the blood ran into my eye it blinded me. I thought both eyes were gone then, and I hoped they would shoot me. It seemed to me that I had got my share by this time without losing the other eye, and if it was gone, I wanted to go too.

I could not put up my hand to feel where the prong had jabbed me, and it kept on bleeding and smarting. I had on practically no clothing, you remember. The wounds in my thigh had opened, and it was bitter cold and windy. So you can picture to yourself how gay and carefree I was.

When I had been there for an hour and a half they untied me from the wire, and I keeled over on my back. They kicked me until I had to stand up, but I fell down again, and all the kicking in Germany could not have brought me to my feet. I was just all in. So they blew their whistles, and the sentries in the barracks awakened two of the boys, who came and carried me in.

All the time the sentries were yelling, "Gott strafe England!" and "Schweinhund!" until you would have thought they were in a battle. What their idea was I do not know.

The boys had a little water in a can, and one of them tore off part of the sleeve of his undershirt. So they washed the gash and bandaged it. Believe me, I was glad when I could see again. I was so tired and worn out that I went to sleep at once, and did not wake up until they were giving us our barley coffee next morning.

NOT LIKE OLD DAYS

Men of Middle Age Indulge in Comparisons

Lack of Thrift in Rising Generation Especially Subject of Comment—Finally Thoroughly Convinced "The World Do Move."

Two plainly dressed, substantial looking men of fifty or thereabouts were discussing the high cost of living, dying and every other old thing while having their shoes polished in a place just off Herald square. One was saying he couldn't figure how persons of small earning capacity were managing to keep body and soul together. The other ventured the opinion that the class of persons he referred to were not entitled to the sympathy they were getting because their standard of living was out of all proportion to their pay envelopes.

"When we were youngsters back in the middle West," the second man went on, "we considered ourselves lucky if we got some plain schooling and three fairly square meals a day. We had pennies where the average boy in this town has dimes and quarters. After we came to New York we waited until we were fairly well established before we indulged in even small luxuries. It seems to me that small wage earners have lost all sense of thrift."

Even as he spoke there came an illustration of his remarks in the person of a messenger boy, who climbed into the next seat and directed the bootblack to polish his newest shoes and put in five cents. After giving this order the boy hit a five-cent bar of chocolate in half, took a cigarette from a ten-cent package, and then settled down to read a magazine that had cost 15 cents. The two men exchanged amused glances.

"That boy's shine and refreshments and other things will cost him fifty-five cents," said the man who had been doing most of the talking. "However, I don't think I spent that much in a month when I was his age."

"Nor I," laughed the other. "And it was a great lark when we were boys to shine our own shoes. When we felt wicked we smoked cinnamon cigarettes. A couple of cents would buy enough material to provide smokes for a whole crowd."

A five-cent thriller was passed from one boy to another until all the youngsters in town had read it," added his friend.

They stole another look at the young plutocrat, sighed deeply and left the place shaking their heads. Crossing the street in this contemplative mood, they barely escaped being knocked down by a youth on a motorcycle.

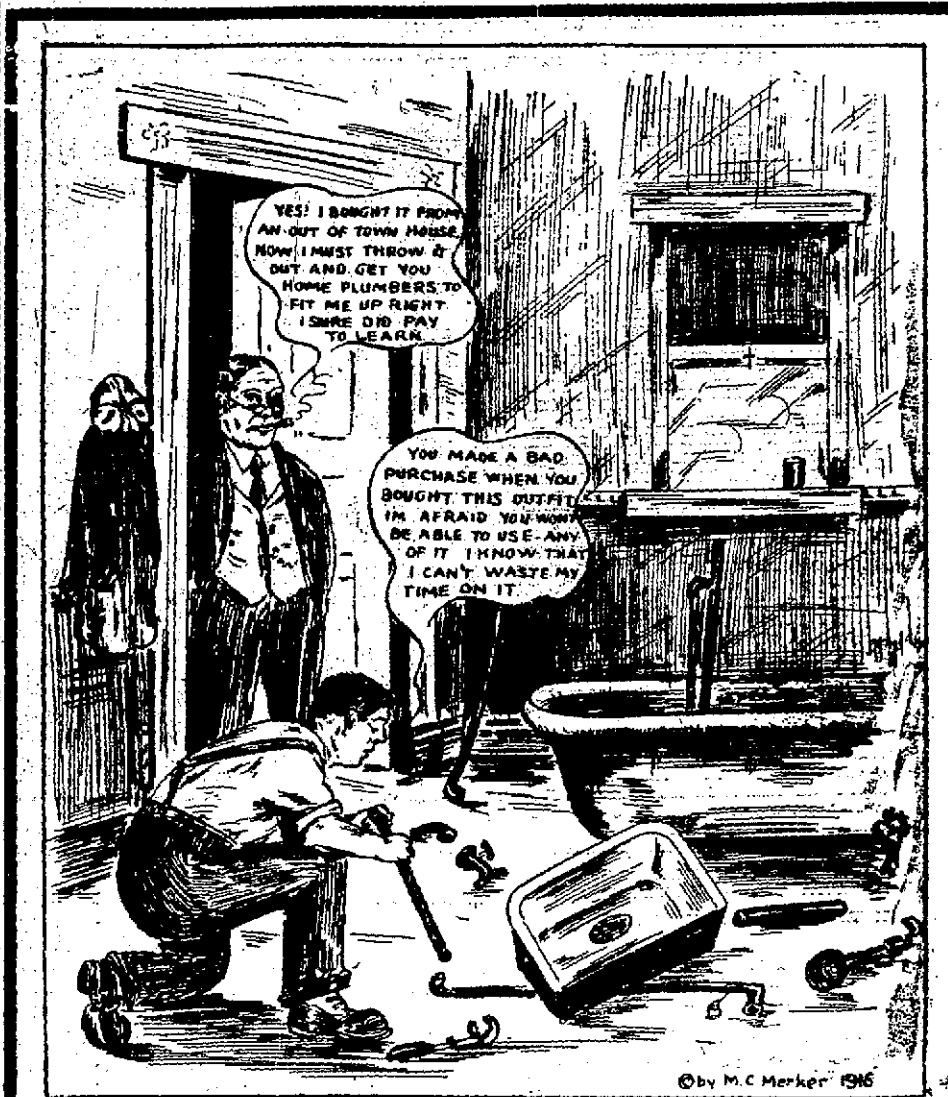

"And we used to feel real reckless on our velocipedes," mused one.—New York Evening Telegram.

Spying on Spies.

Spy spies on spies in Germany. The German office holder, ex-Ambassador Gerard writes in the London Times, fears the spies of his rivals. "I often said to Germans holding high office during the war: 'This strain is breaking you down—all day in your office. Take an afternoon off and come shooting with me.' The inevitable answer was, 'I cannot; the others would learn if from their spies and would spread the report that I neglect business.'"

German spies are adepts at opening bags, steaming letters—all the old tricks. The easiest way to bamboozle them, Mr. Gerard says, is to write nothing that cannot be published to the world. "For a long time I was too busy to write the weekly report of official gossip usually sent home by diplomatists. I suppose the Germans searched our counter bags for such a report vainly. Anyway, its absence finally got on the nerves of Zimmermann so much that one day he blurted out: 'Don't you ever write reports to your government?'"

New Artificial Leather. The base of the artificial leather developed within the last few years is some cotton fabric, thick or thin, which constitutes about three-fourths of the weight of the finished material. This is treated with a paste of varying composition, including nitrocellulose, oil, and some lead coloring matter as essential ingredients, then a thin celluloid finish is given and the grain of the leather imitated by being passed through special pressure rolls. This product, said to cost about a third as much as genuine leather, has been adopted for a great variety of purposes. It is used for trunks, slippers, pocketbooks, fancy leather goods, and especially for upholstering furniture and automobiles, but as a material for the uppers of shoes it appears to be still in the process of development, with no satisfactory results in sight.

THE PLUMBING THAT CAN'T BE PLUMBED

Can you imagine anything more humiliating than the feelings of this man when he is compelled by force of circumstances to call the local plumber to erect the bathroom equipment he has purchased by mail, utterly forgetting the home plumber, and to learn that his purchase is utterly worthless and his money gone? Possibly you have been a victim of similar circumstances and have learned your lesson; if not, our aim is to warn you of the sorrow that such an experience is certain to bring. The home plumber loses his patience when he looks upon the folly of those who do not have sufficient confidence to give him an opportunity to fill their wants but who do have sufficient nerve to call upon him when they have bungled.

MORAL:—When the mail order house has put your purse and mental equilibrium out of plumb, don't ask the local plumber to right them.

"THE LONE AVENGER"—A feature attraction in which William Hart, one of the most popular screen actors of the day, is being presented today.
The picture is interesting from beginning to end, and gives Mr. Hart an excellent opportunity to display his dramatic ability. He is supported by a cast of unusual excellence. The Universal Weekly is also being shown.
Tomorrow, June 17th, supported by John Bowers and other screen stars of prominence, will appear in "Reckless," a five-part World feature of national interest. This is a story of the way in which a mountain wild brought the redemption of a man. It is a story that moves quickly to a smashing climax. It was a happy chance which made it possible for this picture to appear in this striking story, which puts her striking personality splendidly. This picture

Without Phosphorus Nerves of Steel Weaken, Waste Away and Die

Says Dr. Reid, Who Prescribes Phosphorated Malt to Steady and Strength-then the Nerves, Clear the Brain and Bring Back the Joys of Life.
An Easy Way to Recharge the System
With Phosphorus and Restore Health and Strength to the Weak and Anemic.

Boston, Mass.—Your nerves and brain need phosphorus like your body needs food, says Dr. Reid, and the trouble with most of us is we use up our supply of phosphorus, and find ourselves all run down and unable to do our daily work without feeling all tired out. We may look strong and healthy as if we could do a full day's work without fatigue, but while we easily become all fagged out—we can't stand anything. We give out because we lack phosphorus and lack endurance. For months and years we go on using a little more phosphorus every day than we store up, and the loss is so gradual that it is unnoticed until a crisis is reached and we find ourselves on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. This condition affects both mind and body. Nothing interests us as it once did, and we actually live less—our nerves are less sensitive—they are not so fully alive.
When I find this condition I prescribe phosphorated malt and I have seen it produce astonishing results in a very short time.

Recently a patient came to me all run down and on the verge of a mental collapse. His daily work had become drudgery and he got neither rest nor recreation from his sports or holidays. He could neither sleep nor concentrate his mind on his work. I advised him to eat less and take two ave-grain tablets of phosphorated malt after each meal. In less than ten days he walked into my office full of vim and vigor, his eyes bright, his step firm and his manner that of a man of twenty-five though he was well past fifty.

The value of malt is well known to all physicians. It is a remarkable tonic and tissue builder. Combined with phosphorus and phosphates as in phosphorated malt it increases mental stamina, balances the blood and aids the system to convert food into living tissue. The old liquid form of malt are inconvenient to take, and most of them contain alcohol, which produces a needless stimulation always followed by a depressing reaction. Phosphorated malt has the nutritive properties of malt without the evil effects of alcohol. After a few days of it you will wake in the morning vigorous and refreshed, ready to begin the day's work with redoubled confidence, optimism and endurance.

NOTE—The feeling of exhilaration often noticeable after a few weeks' use of phosphorated malt is not due to stimulation. It is the cheerfulness that comes of perfect health—a life stream flowing freely, carrying the nourishment the body needs, and flushing out the poisons of which the body needs to be rid. The fine exhibition of perfect health and fearless nourishment is so rare to most people as to be remarkable and strange.
Phosphorated malt is sold by all druggists and especially in Connellsville by the Laughey Drug Co., and J. C.
Moore.

Flatwoods.

FLATWOODS, July 17.—Mrs. John Messmore and children of Masontown, spent a part of last Sunday with friends in this neighborhood. Her husband, Dr. John Messmore, is in the service, and at present is located at Washington, D. C.

There will be a Sunday school meeting held in the Flatwoods church on next Friday afternoon and evening.
Good speakers will be present and all are invited to attend.

M. E. Townsend is superintending the work on the State road from the Franklin township line to the Dunbar township line, near Vanderbilt, and the road is now in better condition than it has been for years.

The regular communion services will be held at the Flatwoods church on next Sunday, and on Saturday at 2 o'clock the regular business meeting of the church will be held.

Mrs. Isaac McClelland, who has been illing for some time, is at present about the same.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"ONE MORE AMERICAN"—A Paramount photodrama, featuring George Beban, the Italian impersonator, in a strikingly patriotic picture, without any of the exaggerated sentimentalism of the ordinary so-called "patriotic" film. "One More American," like most of Mr. Beban's photoplays, deals with the life of an immigrant and his warring struggle to make friends of the Americans and to adopt their customs, as well as to swear allegiance to their flag. Tomorrow Douglas Fairbanks appears in the Triangle drama, "American Aristocracy."
Coming soon, "Over the Top," featuring Sergeant Guy Empey (himself), in the leading role of his famous book.

Vanderbilt.

VANDERBILT, July 17.—Rev. and Mrs. D. H. McKee and daughters,
Mary and Helen; and granddaughter, of Wilkesburg, Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong of Connellsville and Mrs.
C. L. V. Bute, formerly of Uniontown,

MEN'S SHIRTS

The Greatest War Time Economy Event yet offered the men and young men of Fayette county. No question of it. The price—95c—is the same as last year—which is a distinct triumph in itself. But better still, the QUALITY is also the same—just as you have always received in Wright-Metzler Shirts at this price.

Old contracts dating back a year and more make this price possible. These contracts expined with this shipment and no telling when such shirts can be bought again.

Over 2400 Shirts in the Lot and All to be Sold at 95¢

Handsome patterns and color effects in percale, madras and cords. Dozens of Shirts in that good 84x84 percale,
